

Lectuer4: Relative pronouns, relative clauses

Relative pronouns: are used to connect clauses or phrases to nouns or pronouns, providing more information about them. The most common relative pronouns are:

1. Who: Refers to people.
 - o Example: The teacher who helped me is retiring.
2. Whom: Also refers to people but is used in formal contexts, often as the object of a verb or preposition.
 - o Example: The student to whom I spoke was very insightful.
3. Whose: Indicates possession.
 - o Example: The artist whose painting won the award is well known.
4. Which: Refers to animals or things.
 - o Example: The book, which I borrowed, was fascinating.
5. That: Can refer to people, animals, or things and is often used in restrictive clauses.
 - o Example: The car that I bought last year is blue.

Example:

Who: The musician who performed last night was amazing.

Whom: She is the author whom I admire the most.

Whose: The scientist whose research changed the field received an award.

Which: The project, which was due last week, was completed on time.

That: The cake that she baked was delicious.

Exercise 1: Fill in the Blanks

Complete the sentences using the correct relative pronoun (who, whom, whose, which, that).

1. The teacher _____ teaches math is very helpful.
2. The book _____ you lent me was intriguing.
3. I met a woman _____ travels around the world.
4. The dog _____ barked all night kept us awake.
5. The scientist _____ discovered the cure was honored.

Exercise 2: Combine Sentences

Combine the following pairs of sentences using a relative pronoun.

1. The car is new. It belongs to my sister.
2. I saw a movie. It was really scary.
3. The girl is my best friend. She lives next door.
4. The teacher is very kind. We had her last year.
5. The house is for sale. It has a large garden.

Relative clauses: are dependent clauses that provide additional information about a noun in a sentence. They often begin with relative pronouns such as who, whom, whose, which, or that.

There are two main types of relative clauses: restrictive and non-restrictive.

1. Restrictive Relative Clauses

These clauses are essential to the meaning of the sentence; they specify which noun you're talking about and do not use commas.

Example:

- The book that I borrowed is fascinating.
(This specifies which book.)

2. Non-Restrictive Relative Clauses

These clauses add extra information but are not essential to the meaning of the sentence; they are set off by commas.

Example:

- My brother, who lives in New York, is visiting us.
(This adds information about the brother but isn't necessary to identify him.)

Examples of Relative Clauses

- Restrictive: The car that I want is red.
- Non-Restrictive: The car, which is red, is parked outside

- Restrictive Relative Clause: The dog that barks is mine.
- Non-Restrictive Relative Clause: My sister, who loves cats, has three of them.

Practice Exercise

Try creating sentences using restrictive and non-restrictive relative clauses.

1. Write a sentence with a restrictive relative clause about a hobby you enjoy.
2. Write a sentence with a non-restrictive relative clause about a family member.
